Latinos in Lynn

Part of a Series of Profiles of Latinos in Massachusetts Completed with Support from the Boston Foundation.

The Mauricio Gastón Institute for Latino Community Development and Public Policy

The Mauricio Gastón Institute for Latino Community Development and Public Policy was established at the University of Massachusetts at Boston in December of 1989. The creation of the Gastón Institute responds to the need for better understanding of the experience and conditions of life of Latinos in the Commonwealth! Its purpose is to conduct research about the Latino population in Massachusetts and to develop the kind of information and analysis necessary for the development of sound public policy and for the effective participation of the Latino population in public policy development in the Commonwealth. In an effort to facilitate access to vital information about Latinos to various audiences, and with support from the Boston Foundation, the Gastón Institute has produced a series of basic demographic profiles for selected cities in the Commonwealth based on the 1990 United States Census. These profiles are but one part of the Gastón Institute's broader initiative to disseminate the 1990 United States Census and to address other relevant aspects of the social and economic situation of Latinos in the Commonwealth.

General population changes in the city of Lynn reflected statewide trends, with the black, Latino and in particular Asian populations growing faster than the non-Latino white population, and Latinos growing in absolute number more than any other racial/ethnic group. Between 1980 and 1990 the total population of Lynn increased by 3.5%, and its composition changed substantially. The total Latino population of Lynn grew from 1,998 in 1980 to 7,432 in 1990, for an inter-censal increase of 272%. While Latinos represented 2.5% of the total population of Lynn in 1980, they represented 9.1% in 1990. Lynn had the eighth largest absolute number of Latinos in Massachusetts, and its Latino population as a proportion of the total population of the city also ranked eighth in the Commonwealth. (For more information about Latinos in Massachusetts see the back page.) The number of non-Latino whites decreased by 10.7% between 1980 and 1990, and the number of non-Latino blacks and Asians increased by 86% and 1350.7% respectively.

¹ Latino will be used throughout to refer to a person living in the United States of Puerto Rican, Cuban, Dominican, or Mexican ancestry as well as other Spanish-speaking people from Central or South American countries.

“Other” Latinos and Puerto Ricans were the major Latino groups in the city, with “Other” Latinos continuing to outnumber Puerto Ricans, traditionally the largest Latino subgroup in most of the cities of the Commonwealth. Making up the “Other” category are Latinos from the Dominican Republic, Central and South America.² Between 1980 and 1990 the share of “Other” Latinos increased from 59.1% of the Latino population to 64%, while the share of Puerto Ricans decreased from 34.3% to 30.7%.

Lynn: Latino Population by Age

(Percent of total Latinos in 1980-1990)

The Latino population in the city of Lynn, while remaining relatively young, became older in general. Latino median age increased from 20.9 years in 1980 to 22.8 years in 1990. While the percentage of Latinos 24 years of age or younger represented 56.5% of the total Latino population in 1980, these Latinos represented 54.6% in 1990. Conversely, for the same period, the share of Latinos between 25 and 54 years of age increased from 34.8% to 39%, and the share of Latinos 55 years of age and older decreased from 8.7% to 6.4%.

²It is not possible to disaggregate the “Other” Latino category so as to differentiate the share of those individuals from the Dominican Republic, South and Central American countries. Still unpublished 1990 U.S. Census data by nativity would further permit some degree of differentiation.

The median age of both Latino males and females in Lynn increased between 1980 and 1990. And although the median age for Latino males showed a greater increase than for Latino females, Latino females continued to be older than their male counterparts. Median age for Latino males increased from 19 years in 1980 to 21.9 years in 1990, and Latino females' median age increased from 23.2 years to 23.7 years.

Between 1980 and 1990, the composition of the Latino population by household type changed considerably in Lynn. Among the most evident changes were a decline in the share of married-couple households with and without related children, an increase in the share of male-headed households, a decrease in the share of householders living alone, and an increase in the share of householders living with other unrelated individuals. The share of single female-headed households with related children increased substantially between 1980 and 1990, although the share of female-headed households without related children decreased.
